The Etruscans of Vetulonia: the city, the necropolis, the port, and the museum.

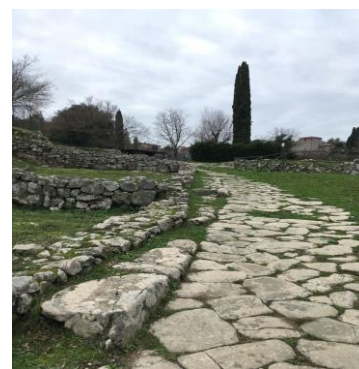

9:30 am: Meet the guide in the town square in front of the archaeological museum and start the trekking excursion. Vetulonia is one of the 12 most important city-states of Etruria, which formed the so-called Dodecapoli, a powerful alliance of an economic, military and religious nature.

Vetulonia experienced its maximum splendor and wealth around the IV century BC. It is believed that 25,000 people lived there, and that the wellbeing of the population was based on the mining establishments of the territory. We can still see the remains of Etruscan-Roman houses, the walls and sections of the paved roads of the Costa dei Lippi and Costa Murata archaeological sites. Of great importance is the necropolis with its extensive system of well-shaped tombs, a chamber, a ditch, cumulus and circular, like the tombs of the Fibula d'Oro, Diavolino 2, Pietrera and the Belvedere tomb. Finally, you can't miss the visit to the Isidoro Falchi Archaeological Civic Museum.
